ne proof of any such rivalship, and he believed the contrary was the case. He went into a history of the case, and contended Congress ought to pay it. He hoped the bill would be repried to the House.

Cave Jourson made some further remarks in opposition to the bill, and read the bill of charges.

Ma. Hale, of N. H., hoped Congress would consider what they were about, and would not establish so dangerous a precedent as would be done by the passage of this bill. He hoped the bill would be rejected.

Ma. Resp., of Pa., hoped the bill would be rejected, as else every proprietor of a steamboat, stage, or railroad company would otherwise be claiming compensation for carrying General Lafayette.

Mr. Atkinson, of Va., looked with great suspicion upon all money claims, presented to Congress, as he had seen so many hands suspiciously thrust into the public Treasury. He made no speeches for effect elsewhere, but trusted, vainly, he was afraid, that what he said might have an effect in the House on the subject under consideration. He went into a history of the case, and said, if the use of the ship were offered as an act of patriotism, he ought to be ashamed to come and ask from Congress. He had, however, refused to receive compensation from General Lafayette; and if he had not been actuated by a design to present it immediately afterwards, instead of waiting for years?

Mr. Vancs.—It was presented in 1825.

Mr. Arkinson.—It such be the fact, why is it not mentioned in the report of the committee? And if such be the fact, what became of the argument of the gentleman from Massachussets, who said it was right not to present the claim so long as General Lafayette lived? He believed that if General Lafayette had lived till now, the claim, would never have been presented. Such was the patriotism of the claim, and the person who preferred it.

Mr. Pollock, of Pa., supported the payment of the claim. The demand had been made, and right or wrong they should pay it. The people would not condemn, but would approve it.

to the House, with a recommendation that it do not pass the House.

Mr.Catlin inquired if that had preference to the motion to report, that it be adopted.

The Splaker answared that it had.

Tellers were then called for on the motion, and the result was 79 for Mr. Johnson's motion, and 55 against it, and the motion was carried.

Care Johnson moved that the committee rise and report to the House. Withdrawn.

The next bill was one for the relief of the legal representatives of Captain Tillard.

On motion of Mr. Vance, its consideration was post-poned.

On motion of Mr. VANOE, its consideration was postponed.

The next was for the relief of the New Orleans and Carrollton Railroad Company.

CAVE JOHNSON opposed the bill as a matter of course.

Mr. SLIDELL, of La, went into a statement of the affairs of the company, showing the justice of the claim, and combatting Mr. Johnson's positions. He quoted a report of Cave Johnson's on a similar question, which was in favor of the position he took. This was read by the Clerk, and Mr. S. said he thought it would puzzle eventhe ingenuity of the gentleman from Tennessee to refute
his own arguments

Clerk, and Mr. S. said he thought it would puzzle eventhe ingenuity of the gentleman from Tennessee to refute
his own arguments

CAYE JOHNSON replied, but was inaudible, as he stood with his back to the reporter.

The hour having arrived, (two o'clock.) fixed for the consideration of the Clerk's case, Mr. Johnson moved that the Committee rise, which was agreed to.

Mr. Hammert enquired the business before the House.

The SPARKER—The report of the Committee on Accounts, and, that he had to say that the Committee met at 10 o'clock, and remained in session till 12 o'clock, but Mr.
McNulty dia not make his appearance among them. The Accounting Clerk, Mr. Kershaw, by his directions, presented himself before them, between II and 12 with accounts upon which he requested them to act; but for this they had not time. They enquired of the Clerk where the unexpended balance of the fund was—whether it was forthcoming, or where deposited? and he replied that Mr. McNulty must answer that question himself.—

He (Mr. T.) felt indignant, because Mr. McNulty had, yesterday, refused to go into detail, and said the Clerk had the papers to show where this money was, and this feeling had prevailed until half an hour ago, when he received a not-from Mr. McNulty, stating that there was $29,000 to his credit in the Bank of America, New York. He would remark that this did not materially alter the condition of the case, as by the act of 1816 the Clerk was required to keep his accounts with the Banks of the District, but he had been informed that perhaps the Clerk considered there were no Banks in the District—but then the question arose, had the Clerk theloower to draw money from the treasury and deposit it in New York? Or had he the right to say it was not safe where the law said it should be deposited. His opinion was that the Clerk's conduct was highly reprehensible, and he deserves consure for his contumacy and disrespect, if the House did not think proper to dismiss him.

Mr. TALOR replied that they had none but the letter which had been read. (Lughter from all parts of the House.)

Mr. Housenvord, of New York, sent to the Clerk a letter which he asked to be read. It proved to be a letter from Suydam, Sage & Co., of New York, stating that in November last they had received a cheque for $10,000 from Mr. McNulty. with instructions to place it to the predict of Mr. E. J. Woodworth, of Mt. Vernon, Ohio, and all said money had been drawn against by Mr. W., who was a merchant in good standing.

Cave Joneson inquired if the report of the Committee of Accounts made in January, had been printed.

The Sprance stated that he was informed by the Chief Clerk that it was ordered to be printed on the 7th of January; but that, by direction of Mr. McNulty, it had not been printed, as he stated that one of the tables was incomplete and could not be finished till the return of Mr. Kershaw, the Accounting Clerk.

Mr. Wellen, and could not be finished till the return of Mr. McNulty of the solsman representations of Mr. McNulty of the solsman representations of Mr. McNulty of the satisfactorily explained. He had been him down to be at any loss. He had sought to obtain an atterview with Mr. McN. this morning, but had not succeeded. He had seen him last evening, when he had had explanations; and if his statements were true—and they would not be at any loss. He had sought to obtain an interview with Mr. McN. this morning, but had not succeeded. He had seen him last evening, when he had had explanations; and if his statements were true—and they carried conviction to his mind—he still believed that it would be shown that he had not been guilty of any improper conduct. He believed that he was now so situated that he could not make that explanation which would be hereafter given. He had been induced by the most solemn representations made to him, and by which he had been deceived, to make statements and place himself in a position which he deeply regretted.

The first resolution to dismiss Caleb J. McNulty from the office of Clerk of the House, was then put, and the yeas and nays being called, all present, 196 in number, voted in the affirmative.

The second resolution, requiring the Secretary of the Troasury to take legal steps forthwith to recover the money deficient was likewise unanimously adopted.

The third resolution, requiring the President to institute criminal proceedings for embezzlement, under the law of 1841, against Mr. McNulty, and all persons concerned therein, then came up for consideration.

Mr. Brissn, of Alabama, opposed its adoption, and contended that it would be condemning him before hand.

Mr. Duncam, of Ohio, likewise strenuously opposed the adoption, and asked where were the Banks of the District in which the public money, should be kept? He denied that there were any such, and asked what law Mr. McNulty had violated?

Mr. Syrrson, of N. Y. asked if Mr. Woodworth, of Ohio, of Mr Secor, of New York, were proper depositories of the public money, or were banks?

Mr. Hamin, of Maine, thought it was the duty of the District? He opposed the passage of the resolution.

Mr. Hamin, of Maine, thought it was the duty of the House to act promptly. The resolution required the President to enforce the laws, and that should be done. It was due to themselves, after the conduct of the Clerk, to pass this resolution.

After some confus

After some confusion and many questions and analysis the question was taken on Cave Johnson's amendment, which was lost.

The question was then ordered, on the resolution, and the yeas and nays were called, and resulted in the adoption of the resolution—170 yeas, 4 nays.

Mr. Horzuss, of Virginia, said that he moved to suspend the rules and adopt a resolution he held in his hand. The resolution was read, it was—

"Resolved. That Benj. B. French, be, and he hereby is elected Clerk of this House.

The question was taken on suspending the rules, and carried with one dissentient.

The previous question was then moved and carried, and Mr. French was elected Clork by nearly a unanimous vote. The house then adjourned.

[Correspondence of the Herald.]
PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 19, 1845. I returned last evening from Harrisburg, the seat of government of our State, where our solons are in grave council for better or for worse, which of the two to choose, eternal infamy to the State or payment of the interest in February, is a debate able question, and I am pained to know that their decision upon the question, is, to say the least of it, uncertain. With the funds in the treasury, in abundance to pay the finterest due upon the State debt, and with the recommendation of Governor Porter staring them in the face, calling upon them to pay and save the questioned honor and credit of the State, they answer, or many of them do, that the legislature of the last and previous years made the legislature of the last and previous years made certain charitable appropriations which must first be taken from the fund in the treasury, which will leave about twenty-five per cent of the interest due in February. If an individual happened to be largely in debt, and answered the demands of creditors by declaring that there were objects of charity claiming his attention, he would be answered, be just before you are generous. A very proper answer it would be, and I invite the attention of our honorable legislators to this view of the question; they may rely upon it, that nothing short of prompt payment will satisfy the people, their constituents, are pisin honest citizens, who ask them to save the keystome of the American arch Governor Porter deserves the lasting gratitude of his countrymen, but particularly that of the citizens of Pennsylvania, for his fearless and determined course, marked out in his message, urging at all and every hazard the payment, the honest payment of the interest due in February. What right have we to appropriate the money of others to our domestic charity? Are we emulous of the distinction which such palpable misconduct (to use the midest phrase) would give us with the civilized worli? Do we want to be the by-word and soum of all honest States and nations? If not, follow the recommendations of Gov. Porter in his message at the commencement of this session. Let his political and personal enemies rail against him and elander him as they may—let them produce temporary excitement for their purposes—the sober second thought of the people will appreciate and value his services. They will look to the forlor condition of the State, steeped in debt and disgrace by the profligacy and prodigality of the Whigs, who had ruled the State for three years before he came into office; they will remember the desperate acts of their government officers, headed by old Grandmother Ritner, alias Governor Ritner, and his grand-daughter Secretary Burrows, with Attorney General Wm. B. Reed; Penson, Stevens & Company, of Senate back window memory, to defeat the people's choice in their Governor; and the sad example of ritot and disregard of law practised by them, the corrupting effects of which have been so recently felt in the city of Philadelphia; that they clung to the rebes of office and authority until the hardy-yeomanry of the country assembled a: thesets of government, and burled them from the high places which they had disgraced, and which the people had, at the ballot box, given them notice to quit; their dying throes and agonies will be remember that David R. Porter took the helm of the good old ship Pennsylvania in such a storm, and has now, a that the contrast has won for him golden opinions, and has marked out for him a prosperous political course.

I cannot refraia from remarking here upon the heavy tax a public man pays for his greatness or tame, in our country. It is, however, proportioned to his patronage. Governor Shunk stays at Bucklie's Hotel, and is continually surrounded by a gang of political hacks, heartless and soulless demagogues, prating of their services in a round-about way, and eulogizing each other's patriotism and influence in exact proportion to the magnitude of the office they respectfully seek. I trust these drones will be senthome disappointed, that others in future may profit by their example, and the Executive Officer of the Commonwealth permitted, uninfluenced, to select from the good cittzens, officers competent to fill the respective places, and such men as the community have confidence in, and wish to have a place. This is a result devoutly to be wished for as wenter titeurguity of the Common fail to disgust a stranger and put in Coventry our republican form of government. I have much to inform you of, but want of time renders another letter necessary. The newly elected Governor, Shunk, will be inaugurated on Tuesday the 21st day of January. The mells be inducted into office amid the rolling of drum and din of arms. Three hundred of the military attend from the county of Philadelphia and thereby glorify their commanding officer, who is hard up for any office. Au vevoir. X.Y.Z.

SECRET HABITS.—There is a certain secret vice existing among the youthful and indicateret, that leads to a premature debility, decay, old age, insanity and death; and such a death as spine can commplate without shuddering and shripaking from the horrible thought of self-destruction, to which these deluded whims are making with such fearful velocity. Dr. Bell, Superintendant of the Asylum at Charlestowa, Mass., in alluding to the subject of this works says: "It is the vice of ignorance, not of eproving of our land." Dr. Woodward, of the Massachusetts Bett: Lunatte Roupital, says: "It is the vice of ignorance, not of eprovity; and that something should be done to rescue the desired for the subject."
